

Group 1

US Monetary Policy in the Future

Here are some suggestions about your group presentation.

- (1) Not everyone in the group needs to make a presentation. Choose two or three people and let them be spokespersons for the group. However, everyone must contribute to the group presentation. You will need people to get the materials and put them into a Power Point (PPTX) presentation.
- (2) The time limit is about 15 minutes for the presentation. Therefore, you should draw up an outline to ask and then answer some pertinent questions about the topic. Ask and answer these questions succinctly.
- (3) You may change the topic to something you collectively think is more interesting, but try to stay close to the subject. If you do not know about the topic, then try to learn a little bit. Remember, you are not expected to say something deep and profound. Just try to make the presentation interesting.

Here are some basic questions about the topic that can be discussed.

- (1) What is the basic dilemma the Fed faces in normalizing the balance sheet and raising interest rates?
- (2) What has Janet Yellen said recently about the future of monetary policy....what is the Fed looking at in making its decisions?
- (3) If the Fed continues to raise rates and normalize the balance sheet, how might that affect the Euro Area, Japan, China, and Emerging Markets?
